

Date: November 9, 1983

Author: Jim Gordon

Category: Gordon and other Talks-Reports

Questions asked November 9, 1983

Jim Gordon: Mother died January 1, 1981. She's happy. One brother that lives in Russellville, Alabama. He understands some things but doesn't understand the spiritual implications fully yet - is trying. He is thirteen years older than Jim. His mother didn't really understand all the things about Jim but saw it as some kind of religious experience.

His father never really tried to understand or ask him. The only time that he ever said anything was when Uncle Bob died. Jim said that Uncle Bob had come to him and spent about 45 minutes with him after he had died - telling him what went on in the hospital and just talking about what was going on. Jim got home and said he was sorry that Uncle Bob had died. His parents asked if someone had called and told him - he said no and explained that Uncle Bob had spent about 45 minutes with him after he died, etc. Jim's father said something like, "You really are different, but I guess it is good."